

Capri Aidea Summer School 2015

14-18 September 2015

First Call for Participation

III Edition

Aim

The overall aim of the summer school is to enhance participants' research capabilities. The Aidea Capri Summer School provides a chance for doctoral students and early career researchers to develop their understanding of research methods in management studies, benefiting from an interdisciplinary setting, under the guidance of a panel of internationally renowned scholars.

Audience and Method

The course is aimed at doctoral students and early stage researchers in the areas of management, interested in qualitative studies of accounting, management, finance, organization, etc. Candidates who are developing interesting ideas but who still have time to be influenced by participation in the summer school will receive the strongest consideration. Admission will be on a competitive basis.

About 30 participants will be admitted: in addition to overall quality of content, factors such as position within the doctoral process and institutional representation will be taken into account. Participants will be selected by the faculty together with the organizing committee.

Lectures will cover epistemological issues, data collection methods and analytic techniques such as content and discourse analysis.

The Faculty

- Hugh Willmott, Cardiff Business School (chair)
- Emma Bell, Keele University
- Marie Laure Djelic, ESSEC Paris
- Roberto Di Pietra, University of Siena
- Staffan Furusten, SCORE Stockholm
- Gazi Islam, Grenoble Ecole de Management
- Afshin Mehrpouya, HEC Paris

- Mike Wallace, Cardiff Business School
- Richard Weiskopf, University of Innsbruck

Venue

The summer school will be held on the island of Capri at Villa Orlandi, a seventeenth century villa restored by the University of Napoli Federico II. The villa, surrounded by a nice park, is particularly suited for study and includes all essential facilities. Over ten desks equipped with PCs and Internet connections are available. The venue is open only to admitted participants.

How to apply

Potential applicants are invited to submit a single PDF file consisting of:

1. A 4-page extended abstract of their thesis project/research idea. Clearly specifying:
 - Originality and importance of their intended topic;
 - Contribution of the work (expected);
 - Methodological perspectives or epistemological positions they would think as useful to discuss during the summer school;
2. CV;
3. A letter of recommendation from the primary dissertation advisor/leading member of the research group of the applicant;

Seats are limited to 30 selected submissions. All materials should be sent as a single PDF file by 30th April 2015. An email receipt of the letter will be sent to acknowledge submissions.

Fees will be limited to Euro 325,00 for each participant (not including transport, accommodation and the social event).
